WORLD TOURISM DAY CELEBRATION

Report:

The Department of History organized an intra-departmental competition to celebrate World Tourism Day, focusing on exploring students' hidden talents. The event aimed to encourage students and provide them with a platform to showcase their skills, while also offering insights into the business strategies related to the tourism industry.

The competition effectively met its objective by motivating students to think creatively about tourism and its economic impact. Participants presented various projects that highlighted the significance of tourism in generating income and creating job opportunities. Additionally, the presentations underscored the tourism industry's substantial influence on infrastructure, including airports, railways, and roadways.

The programme outcome was notable, as it not only revealed students' diverse talents but also enhanced their understanding of the tourism sector's broader economic and infrastructural implications. The event contributed to a greater appreciation of tourism's role in societal development and its potential for future growth.
