CONSULTANCY SERVICE ON "HOME AUTOMATION TECHNIQUE"

The Department of Computer Science provided a complimentary consultancy service focused on home automation techniques for the residents of Uthangudi. The initiative aimed to introduce the community to the latest advancements in smart home technology and offer practical guidance on implementing these solutions in residential settings.

The consultancy service covered various aspects of home automation, including the integration of smart devices, energy management systems, and security enhancements. Residents were educated on how to optimize their home environments through automated lighting, climate control, and surveillance systems, ultimately improving convenience, energy efficiency, and security.
