SEMINAR ON "ERECT STONE SPEAKS"

Report:

The Department of History organized a seminar titled "Erect Stone Speaks," focusing on the fields of epigraphy and archaeology. The primary objective of the seminar was to enhance students' understanding of the significance of inscriptions and stone monuments in reconstructing historical narratives. During the seminar, experts in the field delivered insightful lectures on the techniques used in deciphering ancient inscriptions and the role of stone monuments in preserving cultural heritage. The discussions emphasized that epigraphy is not just the study of inscriptions but a science that involves identifying graphemes, clarifying their meanings, and classifying their uses according to dates and cultural contexts. These "erect stones" serve as silent witnesses to historical events, providing valuable information about the political, social, and economic conditions of past civilizations.

E.M.GOPALAKRISHNA KONE YADAVA WOMEN'S COLLEGE

The outcome of the seminar was highly enriching. Students gained a deeper appreciation for the importance of epigraphy and archaeology in historical research. They also learned practical methods for interpreting inscriptions and understanding the context in which these monuments were created. Furthermore, they discovered that inscriptions of the second category, which are more numerous, play a crucial role in helping historians reconstruct the extent and duration of a king's rule. The seminar successfully met its objective, development a greater interest in and respect for the study of ancient artifacts and their stories, while equipping students with valuable skills for historical analysis.
