BRIDGE COURSE

Objectives:

The Department of Computer Applications conducted a Bridge Course entitled "Introduction to Computer Applications" aimed at equipping students with fundamental knowledge of computer systems and their applications. The primary objective of the course was to familiarize students with the basic components of a computer and how they function, laying a strong foundation for further studies in computer-related subjects.

Throughout the course, students were introduced to -various parts of a computer, including the hardware and software components. They learned about the functionalities of each part and how they work together to perform different tasks. Practical sessions were included to reinforce theoretical knowledge, allowing students to gain hands-on experience in using essential computer applications.
